Farm Bureau Wants To Control Inflation

The Virginia Farm Bureau Federation is launching a campaign to control inflation and avoid the necessity of a federal tax increase.

"It is the responsibility of every taxpayer in the nation to demand fiscal responsibility in government spending," stated VFBF President Robert B. Delano. "Today's high prices on food, clothing and services are the direct result of excessive government spending."

As part of the campaign, each member of Virginia's Congressional delegation has been contacted by the VFBF.

"Every member of our Congressional delegation has generally supported across-the board cuts in government spending," said Delano. "Also, our county Farm Bureau leadership has notified Virginia's delegation of their support for controlling inflation.

"It is politically imperative to each elected official to have a solid voting record on the side of fiscal responsibility," Delano continued. "The Administration has taken a step to reduce federal spending, but it falls nearly $13 billion short of a balanced budget."

A plan to cut the 1974 budget has been proposed to Congress by the American Farm Bureau Federation. It would save nearly $13,400,000,000 in new spending authority and bring about a balanced budget.

The campaign to control inflation is part of a nationwide campaign by state Farm Bureaus.

"We invite all groups and individuals who are interested in stable prices without a tax increase to join us in promoting fiscal responsibility," said Delano.

The only other alternative to inflation," he said, "is a federal tax increase. It is time for the government to assume its responsibility instead of placing the burden on the citizen in the form of higher taxes."
